Not illustrated. 1811 Excerpt: . persons, but were, in a moment, possessed with the knowledge of many different languages, and with a supernatural boldness, an eloquence, and a courage entirely different from their former characters and dispositions: their stations were exalted and refined, and they spake of divine things in so sublime a style, that the noblest efforts of uninspired reason sunk before them; they revealed things which could only be known by immediate inspiration. The Churches they established were, as well as themselves, possessed of miraculous gifts; and such an immense multitude as speedily embraced Christianity, and partook of gifts, could not possibly be deceived in their own powers and actions. The Christian converts were, my dear friends, baptized in the nawe of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost, those three persons in the divine essence of Jehovah, which is a mysterious truth, plainly taught and revealed under Jesus Christ, and also very discoverable in the Jewish scripture, and the ancient Jewish writers. This mystery is intimated in the very first verse of Genesis. This doctrine of a Trinity in Unity, may be above our comprehension; and how can i be otherwise, when a finite being is considering the nature of one that is infinite? but it in no way contradicts our reasoning faculty, because it is a truth superior to it. The resurrection of the dead, and eternal life, were not any more than the Trinity revealed explicitly by Moses; yet, my friends,...
