Abstract and Concrete; the first of which alone can enter into true equations. Every equation is a relation of equality between two abstract functions of the magnitudes in question, including with the primary magnitudes all the auxiliary magnitudes which may be connected with the problem, and the introduction of which may facilitate the discovery of the equations sought. This distinction may be established by both the a priori and a posteriori methods; by characterizing each kind of function, and by enumerating all the abstract functions yet known, --at least with regard to their elements. A priori; Abstract functions express a mode of dependence between magnitudes which may be conceived between Abstract numbers alone, without the need of pointing out any unc wni. phenomena in which it may be found realized; Concrete while Concrete functions are those whose expression on requires a specified actual case of physics, geometry, mechanics, etc. Most functions were concrete in their origin, --even those which are at present the most purely abstract; and the ancients discovered only through geometrical definitions elementary algebraic properties of functions, to which a numerical value was not attached till long afterwards, rendering abstract to us what was concrete to the old geometers. There is another example which well exhibits the distinction just made--that of circular functions, both direct and inverse, which are still sometimes concrete, sometimes abstract, according to the point of view from which they are regarded. A posteriori; the distinguishing character, abstract or...
